

Sensory profile & environment plan

It's not about a perfect home, but a predictable, kind environment. Small tweaks reduce everyone's stress.

- Warm, dimmable light; avoid flicker and harsh glare.
- Lower background noise; keep headphones or earplugs handy if they help.
- Offer comfortable textures and clothes; respect those they can't tolerate.
- Preview the day with routines and visual supports.
- Keep regulation objects handy (weighted toy, ball, chewy).

A "calm corner" is a small, cozy space to go to and slow down, without it being a punishment.

- 1 Choose a quiet corner with low light and noise.
- 2 Add soft textures, a cushion and a favorite regulation object.
- 3 Present it as a kind place, available whenever needed.
- 4 Be present without demanding talk: sometimes just being near is enough.

Neuromundi · Supportive content; it does not replace professional assessment.