

Support-network map

A template to organize who helps with what and the care hand-offs.

Rights, paperwork and supports

What you are entitled to and how to sustain care over time.

You have the right to...

- ✓ Dignified, continuous health care with clear information.
- ✓ Rehabilitation and the supports you need.
- ✓ Accessibility and reasonable adjustments at work and school.
- ✓ Treatment free from discrimination because of your condition.

Asking for support is a right

Disability supports are not a favor: they exist to level opportunities. Learn about those in your country without shame.

Common paperwork

1. Gather up-to-date medical reports in your health folder.
2. Check your country's disability recognition or certificate and its benefits.
3. Ask about supports for transport, medication, therapies or income.
4. Keep a copy of each procedure and its renewal dates.

Caring for the one who cares

The well-being of the caregiver holds up everything else. Caring for yourself is not selfishness: it is part of the care.

- Share tasks and accept help: no one can do it all, always.
- Reserve moments of rest and respite, even brief ones.
- Look for peer support groups (in Neuromundi you have Neurocamps).
- Seek professional help if exhaustion, sadness or anxiety persist.